The 2005 Coro Leadership Review: A Preview

*The Coro Leadership Review (CLR) is a collection of literature that reflects the diversity of ideas permeating the extensive Coro community. The CLR, last published in 2001, examines the issues shaping our neighborhoods and various strategies employed to improve conditions and strengthen community. The focus, content and production of the CLR are determined by the Coro Fellows. The 2005 Community Leadership Review focused on the communities where the 2005 Fellows concentrated much of their work, in Westlake and South Los Angeles. Their articles examine the socioeconomic impacts of fitness and health, strategies for community and youth engagement, parental involvement in public schools, community policing and housing. In this issue of E-Connections, we would like to offer a preview of the CLR with excerpts of two articles, The South Central Farmers and Give Me Shelter: Affordable Housing in Los Angeles. Coro Announces the Inaugural Class of Health Leadership Program Health Associates

We are pleased to announce the successful launch of our Health Leadership Program! On June 7, 2005, we held an orientation session to introduce the 24 Health Associates to the Coro staff and program advisors. As we have shared in previous issues of E-Connections, the Health Associates are mid-career professionals and represent a variety of healthcare professions, organizations and perspectives. The group we have selected is comprised of very motivated and talented individuals. See class roster and more information on the program

Partner Spotlight: Los Angeles Trade Technical College

The Los Angeles Trade Technical College (LATTC) has been serving and educating the Los Angeles Community since 1925. Originally founded as the Frank Wiggins Trade School, LATTC is the oldest of the nine public two-year colleges in the Los Angeles Community College District. LATTC is located on the southern border of Downtown Los Angeles on Washington Boulevard. \(click for more information\)
